Beautiful Hyde Park Home

G. H. Fruehling, Architect and Builder.

Home being built for C. H. Myers on Hyde Park Boulevard

An unusually attractive home is being built on Hyde Park Boulevard for C. H. Myer. The architect and contractor is G. H. Fruehling of this city and the approximate cost of the residence with ground improvements is estimated at $12,500.

The architecture is of a Swiss bungalow effect with low-pitched roof of red tile and broad cornices.

It contains eight rooms, besides two tiled bathrooms, a sleeping porch, breakfast room and basement.

Hardwood floors, beamed ceilings, sideboard, bookcases, window seats and a huge tile fireplace are some of the features combining to make the place modern in every particular. A hot air furnace in the basement will heat the entire house.

An elaborate scheme of landscape gardening and parking is a part of the architectural design, made possible by the presence of large oak trees, among which the building will sit on a lot 100 by 200 feet.

Well-appointed servants' quarters, a garage and carriage house are located at the rear of the lot. The servants' house contains a bath, laundry and wood room, while stalls for horses are attached.
